

Only a quarter of tech conference keynotes in the last three years were women.

76%

of women say they would be more likely to attend a conference with a keynote speaker, panelist or other programming that features a woman.

Three-quarters of women surveyed who have sat on a panel at a tech conference report that they were the only woman on the panel.

